Green Market

Susan's first visit at Green Market in Baden, Austria:

Last weekend I visited (to visit) my aunt Elisabeth in Vienna for the first time. She moved (to move) there in 1999 and she married (to marry) Uncle Franz ten years ago. He then worked (to work) in an Austrian company in the city and my aunt started (to start) to work for this company, too.

Well, to get to Green Market in time, we got up early and left without breakfast. We walked (to walk) to the next bus stop and arrived (to arrive) in Baden thirty-five minutes later.

At the market we looked at (to look at) many market stalls with plenty of fruits and vegetables. One man shouted (to shout) that he sold the best potatoes and another one stopped (to stop) us to say that his apples were the sweetest. At a fruit stand we tasted (to taste) strawberries and tried (to try) grapes. Then we decided (to decide) to buy both. About noon Aunt Susan waited (to wait) to pick us up next to the bus stop and we carried (to carry) our heavy shopping bags there. When we arrived (to arrive) back in Vienna, Franz prepared (to prepare) some nice sandwiches for all of us. Delicious!
